I suddenly realized I knew how to drag direct graphics text and objects around in a display window, just like they do in object graphics, when I was standing in the shower thinking about why I lost that tennis match again. It just came to me, all in a flash. "Geez", I said to myself, "I know how to do that!" AnnotateWindow was done in about an hour. I'd only been thinking about the problem for about five or six years. :-)

Cheers,

David
