The simple/dumb way that pops to mind would be to have the C++ code write to a scratch file on disk every now and then that the widget would monitor.

I'm sure someone else has a more elegant solution, perhaps involving "socket"?