

---

Subject: Re: display line numbers in idlde?

Posted by Ricardo Bugalho on Tue, 31 Jan 2006 15:13:15 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hello,

If you don't wish to install Linux and IDL for Linux on your laptop, you can also try remote graphic access to your server, by using a Xserver for windows.

<http://x.cygwin.com/> is free AFAIK and there a number of comercial options.

You'll need X11 forwarding activated on your ssh server.

On Mon, 2006-01-30 at 20:43 -0800, swingnut@gmail.com wrote:

> Ok, my preferred solution would actually be to running idl locally (as > opposed to ssh to a server) in Linux, editing in kwrite, at full > resolution of my laptop, but since I don't feel like wrestling with the > Sisyphean task of achieving all that while trying to get something > done, I ordered the Windows version of IDL. I'm using idlde because I > can't get idl to compile the pro files in my current working directory
> -- it compiles the library routines I call but won't compile my files > when called. idlde allows my to load them all at once and compile them > all at once, but I still need line numbers because ctrl+g is cumbersome > to be constantly hitting about every minute. So, is there a way to get > idlde to show line numbers of the currently displayed file?
>

---