There is also an additional problem in that the coasts dataset does not fill in the /fill_continents routine. This is a major problem if you are trying to produce maps where the land is masked out.

I would say that your first gut instinct was right. It IS a bug, and a fairly major one at that! If it was meant to happen this way, then why do some of the smaller islands in the Faroes or Orkneys appear, but the major ones are missed out??!!!
