louie wrote:
> hi pete,
>
> there is a new ide coming. it is currently planned to be released in > idl 7.0. the existing ide will be completely replaced by a new and > modern ide. it will have all the features of a modern ide!! it will > be based on eclipse and will work on both unix and windows platforms.
> there is a plan for a tech preview later this year so stayed tuned.

Eclipse is implemented in Java isn't it? Uh oh. I've worked with a few Java GUIs on Windows and I've never seen one that works anywhere near as well as native applications.

Still, on the bright side, it will probably be an improvement on Unix...

--
Mark Hadfield   "Kei puwaha te tai nei, Hoea tahi tatou" m.hadfield@niwa.co.nz
National Institute for Water and Atmospheric Research (NIWA)