
Subject: Re: .Reset_Session in a script

Posted by Benjamin Hornberger on Tue, 06 Jun 2006 20:15:54 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

toddbranch wrote:

- > I have written a script to automatically run all of my data sets
- > through my program. In my program, I define a few structures. I
- > usually run the command .reset_session in between runs of my data
- > because IDL gets mad because my code redefines the same structure. IDL
- > won't let me run the .reset_session command in my script. Any ideas?

By "script", do you mean a regular procedure? I know that you can do
.reset_session in a batch file (which you run by @filename).

Plus, if you redefine the structure all the time, why use a named structure? If you use an unnamed structure, you can redefine it as often as you want.

Happy programming,
Benjamin
