

---

Subject: Re: Need Some Advice on Seperating Out Some Data
Posted by rdellsy on Fri, 11 Aug 2006 05:39:50 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I'm working on doing a cluster tree and getting say the lower-right cluster and the one or two nearest neighbors (sp?). I may still be loosing some data though. Another possibilty would be compressing the data, say, by half, and see if that helps.

Thanks,

Rob

JD Smith wrote:

> On Thu, 10 Aug 2006 11:44:56 -0700, rdellsy wrote:

>

>> With the generated numbers, it seemd to work fine. Here is a comma >> delimited version (.csv) of my data:

>> <http://s2.quicksharing.com/v/6325147/bm.csv.html>

>> With that and Excel (or your speadsheet application of choice), you >> should be able to get just about any data format out of that.

>> Thanks,

>> Rob

>

> Aha, right you are... it appears CLUSTER likes roundish, not elongated > clusters. I also couldn't get it to select your clump.

>

> Good luck,

>

> JD

---