Hello,

Does anyone know why files will be added to the project if you encounter an error during compilation? For example, I added some files to a project and those are the ones I want there, but say I manipulate some code in one of the programs and get an error... I fix it and everything is cool, but then I close IDL and open my project again, now the files that had an error before are automatically added to the load list, but do not show up in the files "tab". Do you know how to omit them from being loaded? Nothing too serious, just annoying. By the way I'm running IDL 5.6 if that helps, maybe its changed since then...

Jon
