

---

Subject: Re: IDLWAVE and call-external

Posted by Nicola on Mon, 02 Oct 2006 08:54:25 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

>
> I'd guess paths as well. Are you relying on the .so file to be in the > current path? IDLWAVE doesn't do anything to affect this, so it must be > path setup. Try starting Emacs from a shell where it is working, and > attempt again. It should work.
>
> JD

You are right.....

Actually starting emacs from a shell all works fine whereas starting from start bar (KDE environment) does not work properly. I can't understand the reason (the library is included in my LD_LIBRARY_PATH in my .bash_profile file) but maybe this is not more a question for this newsgroup (but if someone has some suggestion is welcomed!)

Regards

n

---