
Subject: Re: filled usersym

Posted by Klemens Barfus on Wed, 18 Oct 2006 14:45:45 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi David,

I thought noclip=0 is the default setting ?

I added it to the plot command and also to the oplot commands, but it does not solve the problem. But I have to mention that the problem arises, when I create a triangle. When I use a rhomb it works fine

Cheers,

Klemens

David Fanning wrote:

> Klemens Barfus writes:

>

>

>> working with the usersym option in a postscript plot, I created a filled >> triangle. When the triangle is clipped at the plot boundaries, the >> filling does not appear anymore and just the contour lines, plotted with >> an extra command are visible.

>> What can I do or is this a bug of IDL ?

>

>

> Have you tried adding NOCLIP=0 (please don't ask!)
> to whatever command it is you are using?

>

> Let me know. I have some recent experience in this > regard, so I may be able to explain what is happening, > even if I can't fix it. :-)

>

> Cheers,

>

> David
