Braedley writes:

> Heh, I'd buy that 15 pound tome. This despite the fact that I still > haven't read the last 5 chapters (7 months after the fact) of edition > 1. Probably something I should have done before embarking on > maintaining a beast of a widget program without much documentation, but > what's done is done. Your book, website, and programs have saved me > many headaches over the past several months.

Well, if your gratitude extends to the monetary, you can always make a donation on the main page. Coyote matches the gifts and they go to a local charity.
This month, a local safe house for battered women.

Cheers,

David

P.S. Coyote prefers a gift like this more than the cases of beer he is promised, but never receives.
And, anyway, he has a hard time matching, and then GIVING AWAY (!!) the beer donations. :-(

--
David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: http://www.dfanning.com/
Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")