
Subject: Re: HELP: IDL Function/Variable Problem
Posted by Tim Patterson on Fri, 13 Oct 1995 07:00:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Thomas A McGlynn <tam> wrote:

>>
> It's not sufficient that you compile a function before you use it, you > must compile the function before you compile any reference to it. E.g., > if you compile the main program then compile the function then execute > the main program, you'll get an undefined variable error. You need > to compile function, compile main, run main. Depending upon how your > functions call one another and how they are distributed amongst the .PRO > files, it may be impossible to run a program without compiling some > of your modules twice. Of course that probably indicates that > you need to restructure your code...
> Tom McGlynn

Not guilty in this case.
The function is compiled before any reference to it.
Still looking into it...

Tim
