
Subject: Re: Is there anyone working on MODIS Atmosphere product?

Posted by Paolo Grigis on Thu, 07 Dec 2006 08:59:22 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Well, I think it means just what it says, that batch_st is not a "scalar string", either because it is an array of strings or because it scalar, but not a string (unless you are feeding openr with an array of non-strings ;-)

Ciao,
Paolo

DirtyHarry wrote:

> Hi, everyone!!!

>

> I am trying to derive some meteorological data from MODIS atmospheric > products. I compiled three files, and ran those procedures. I just got > message below:

>

> OPENR: Filename argument must be a scalar string: BATCH_ST.

>

> where batch_st is designated as follows.

>

> batch_st = 'batch_MOD04.txt'

>

> The contents of 'batch_MOD04.txt' are currently as follows.

>

> G:\KHW\MODIS04\MOD04\

> MOD04_L2.A2002120.0210.004.2003204015139.hdf

> MOD04_L2.A2002120.0345.004.2003204020937.hdf

> MOD04_L2.A2002121.0250.004.2003202091747.hdf

> MOD04_L2.A2002121.0255.004.2003202085607.hdf

> MOD04_L2.A2002122.0155.004.2003202222837.hdf

> MOD04_L2.A2002122.0200.004.2003202223045.hdf

>

> What does this error message mean? If you have any solutions or > suggestions, please let me know. I didn't present my procedure files > now because they are relatively big files. However, if you need to see > the three *.pro files to solve this problem, I can show you. Thanks.

>
