
Subject: Re: Moving XML elements between documents with IDL

Posted by Karl Schultz on Tue, 02 Jan 2007 16:12:10 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Fri, 29 Dec 2006 13:21:56 -0800, Eric Winter wrote:

> Hi folks. I am trying to figure out the proper way to move an element > from one document to another in IDL. More precisely, I want to move a > IDLffXMLDOMElement object from one IDLffXMLDOMDocument object to > another IDLffXMLDOMDocument object. I can't seem to figure out a way to > correctly alter the owner document for the elements in question. I'm > sure there is a way to do it, since I've been able to do it in every > other language I've used for XML processing. Does anyone out there have > an idea how to do this in IDL?
>
> TIA,
> Eric Winter

IDL uses Xerces to implement the IDLffXMLDOM* classes and unfortunately does not expose every Xerces feature. What you need is the DOMDocument::ImportNode method, which is not currently exposed by IDLffXMLDOMDocument.

Karl
