Subject: Re: Array with mixing data types Posted by Julio[1] on Sat, 06 Jan 2007 12:28:18 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi Gianguido,

I'm not familiar with structures, but I see I there isn't another way to make that. So, here I go to IDL's help guide.

Thanks for all the comments, Julio

Gianguido Cianci escreveu:

- > I have never done anything like this in IDL before myself, but have in
- > other languages so I'll give it a shot:
- > how about making/writing an array of structures or objects? then each
- > structure could have a string variable, and a float variable...
- > what do you think?
- > Gionauido
- > Gianguido
- > Julio wrote:
- >> Hi,
- >>
- >> I have a simple question. I'm using the WRITE_SYLK function to export
- $>> \,$  an array. The array was built using STRARR function, but I put some
- >> float numbers inside it.
- >>

>>

- >> When I open the *.slk file the float numbers are shown as strings and I
- >> need to use an excel command to convert into numbers.
- >> How can I do to make an array with different data types?
- >> Cheers,
- >> Julio