
Subject: Re: Array with mixing data types
Posted by [Julio\[1\]](#) on Sat, 06 Jan 2007 12:28:18 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi Gianguido,

I'm not familiar with structures, but I see I there isn't another way to make that. So, here I go to IDL's help guide.

Thanks for all the comments,
Julio

Gianguido Cianci escreveu:

> I have never done anything like this in IDL before myself, but have in > other languages so I'll give it a shot:
>
> how about making/writing an array of structures or objects? then each > structure could have a string variable, and a float variable...
>
> what do you think?
>
> Gianguido
>
> Julio wrote:
>> Hi,
>>
>> I have a simple question. I'm using the WRITE_SYLK function to export >> an array. The array was built using STRARR function, but I put some >> float numbers inside it.
>>
>> When I open the *.slk file the float numbers are shown as strings and I >> need to use an excel command to convert into numbers.
>>
>> How can I do to make an array with different data types?
>>
>> Cheers,
>> Julio
