

---

Subject: Re: Array with mixing data types
Posted by cgguido on Fri, 05 Jan 2007 17:07:01 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I have never done anything like this in IDL before myself, but have in other languages so I'll give it a shot:

how about making/writing an array of structures or objects? then each structure could have a string variable, and a float variable...

what do you think?

Gianguido

Julio wrote:

> Hi,
>
> I have a simple question. I'm using the WRITE_SYLK function to export > an array. The array was built using STRARR function, but I put some > float numbers inside it.
>
> When I open the *.slk file the float numbers are shown as strings and I > need to use an excel command to convert into numbers.
>
> How can I do to make an array with different data types?
>
> Cheers,
> Julio

---