

---

Subject: Re: !p.multi[0] = ? What's the first element of !p.multi ?
Posted by David Fanning on Mon, 05 Mar 2007 14:34:22 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

R.G. Stockwell writes:

> PS .... so, in PS mode, !P,multi=[0,1,2] does not give an > erase command before plotting the first plot. The erase > command would create a blank page, wouldn't it?

You would think so, but interestingly I have found that if the *first* command into a PostScript file is the ERASE command, that command is not executed. Go figure...

Cheers,

David

--

David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: <http://www.dfanning.com/>
Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")

---