OK, as long as we are fixing things that have long annoyed us, how about this.

For years my IDL Help has come up where I want it on my right-hand monitor. (IDL runs on my left-hand monitor.)
About a month ago I dropped something on my desk and when I reached to catch it, I hit some keys on my keyboard that caused a lot of window flashing, etc. And now, whenever I run the IDL Help, it comes up on my left-hand monitor. :-(

I drag it over where I want it, but when I close it and start it up again, sure enough, back where I don't want it. Clearly this is configurable. (Windows XP Pro) I've tried everything I can think of, including dropping furniture onto my keyboard, etc., but so far no luck whatsoever.

Anyone have any bright ideas about this?

Cheers,

David
