Folks,

Killing time, while some software was downloading, I decided to see what keywords people are using to find my web pages. Of course, most people get there by some variation of "pretty girl", but there are other, more serious approaches, too.

But this one stumped me. Someone found a page today by searching for "vegetables that begin with the letter X".
Too weird. :-(

Cheers,

David

P.S. Sure enough, I have a page that talks about "vegetables that begin with the letter A". That must have been a strange day when I was writing that article.

--
David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: http://www.dfanning.com/
Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")