I think that this very annoying problem is crying out for a combined effort to solve it.

I see two directions:

1.
Have a project which is centered around the architecture of the standard library and Boost (http://www.language-binding.net/pyplusplus/pyplusplus.html)

2.
Have a project which is more generic and centered on the C interface.
(http://www.swig.org/)

I only have a very vague understanding of either project. However, both use GCC-XML.

--

Robbie