
Subject: Re: Question about Plots

Posted by David Fanning on Wed, 17 Oct 2007 14:56:06 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

MT writes:

> I have a cylindrical detector for gamma rays and I want to > visualise two points on the diameter of the detector. The points are > in [x1,y1,z1] and [x2,y2,z2] format. I was planing to use IDL to plot > the 3d outline of the detector and then draw a line through the two > points. This is for visualisation only. I tried PlotS procedure but > that does not seem to be a 3d representation.
>
> How do I go about doing it?

You will have to set the T3D keyword to make PLOTS use the current 3D coordinate transformation.

Cheers,

David

--

David Fanning, Ph.D.

Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.

Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: <http://www.dfanning.com/>

Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")
