
Subject: Re: read_tiff only looks in current working directory?
Posted by David Fanning on Wed, 31 Oct 2007 22:10:41 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Jeff N. writes:

```
> A couple of times now i've run into a strange problem that i haven't > had time to pay much attention to until now. I'm simply trying to > read a tiff file with READ_TIFF, but this code fails:
>
> indir = 'g:\'
> infile = 'test.tif'
> inpath = indir + infile
>
> ;cd,indir
>
> indata=read_tiff(infile)
> help, indata
>
> It fails with a file not found error even though I know that the file > is in the location i'm specifying. Also, the error message prints out > the full path to the file it's looking for, and it is looking for the > correct file name, but the directory path it's looking in is always > the current working directory. So, if i uncomment the call to the CD > command above, the file gets read with no problem. Has anyone else > come across this? This isn't the way it's supposed to work is it?
```

Uh, maybe you want this command:

```
indata = read_tiff(inpath)
```

That might work better. :-)

Cheers,

David

--

David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: <http://www.dfanning.com/>
