> Well, I have found a way to have two help windows open.
>
> First type ? at the command line and the help will show up as part of > the workbench. Click and drag this off the workbench so that it > becomes a detached view. Now go to Help->Help Contents. Now you have > two help windows open!
>
> -Ronn Kling

This works very nicely, thank you. It seems to be limited to two, whereas before you could have endless numbers of tabs open, but it does help.

For the record, 'dynamic help' is substantially quicker than 'help' on my windows machine, and now resides in my Fast View where 'help' once sat. My beloved index is now only a click away. Thanks for this tip, Vince!

Chris