Spon writes:

> OK, a workaround:
>
> deep breath
> In the workbench, click on Help->Dynamic Help
> Click on Index (at the bottom)
> Type in your keyword, e.g. 'widget_control' and open out the subtree > it finds > Right-click on the helpfile you want to see and select 'Open help in > Help Contents' (this is slow-ish on my machine)
> Bingo
>
> Not exactly intuitive, is it? :-(

At least in Windows XP, with 4 MByte RAM, I don't find any of this to be true. The on-line help works in what I would think of as an "intuitive" way. At least, it didn't do anything for me that startled me or annoyed me. I'm very happy with it.
I certainly can find what I have looked for so far.

Cheers,

David
--
David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: http://www.dfanning.com/
Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")