
Subject: Re: Debugging in IDL 7

Posted by David Fanning on Thu, 20 Dec 2007 17:11:37 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

David Fanning writes:

- > Can someone please remind me what's so great about this
- > debug interface? I'm clearly missing something. I have
- > NO IDEA where I am or what the hell I am doing. :-(

Oh, sorry. Combination of the usual holiday funk, a stupid programming error, and a Microsoft keyboard did me in there for a moment.

I don't know how this stupid keyboard works, but by hitting the F Lock key, I can now step through my code instead of closing my friggin' window every time. This probably is not IDL's fault.

I'm still suffering from information overload in that damn Debug perspective, but I guess I'll get used to that.

Cheers,

David

--

David Fanning, Ph.D.

Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.

Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: <http://www.dfanning.com/>

Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")
