I've tried that and it didn't work. Same ol', same old.

Nope, no domain. I haven't looked into the security policy in-depth but they should be similar. The only thing my co-worker and I can surmise is maybe the remote license. My computer reaches to the other (working) computer for the license. I'm going to attempt to install it on another computer tonight (that will get the license remotely) to see if that is the problem. When I start it up IDL 7 on my computer it does not have any license problems (it does not say anything about demo mode) so I doubt that is the case but since I'm out of any other options, I'll give it a try.

I'll let you know how it goes,
Ryan.
