On Jan 4, 12:23 pm, "Ryan." <rchug...@brutus.uwaterloo.ca> wrote:
> On Jan 4, 11:41 am, Vince Hradil <hrad...@yahoo.com> wrote:
>
>> Now for the first post - are you running in windows? You say it is a >> valid path, I know, but are you sure you can point windows explorer >> there and see the files? Is this a network path? Have you tried other >> paths - say "c:\temp" - just to see if there is something going on >> with the folder you want to use? Check to see if there is a >> ".project" file in the folder and delete it, then retry the new >> project.
>
> Yes, I am using Windows. The path I used was a network path but I > tried to save it to put a local folder (C drive) but I get the same > problem. I've tried two different folders on my C drive. I looked > for ".project" files in the first folder but there wasn't any in > there.
>
> There shouldn't be a problem if my Workspace folder is the same as the > project folder right? (It's not, but I'm just curious to prevent any > future mishaps)
> Is it possible that my Workspace folder being a network drive is > messing it up?
>
> I am completely new to using Eclipse.
> Ryan.

Your workspace folder should NOT be the same as your project folder.
In fact, I get an error when I try that. I set up a workspace folder on a network drive and created a new project from an existing folder on a network drive - sorry I'm not getting the same errors. Are there any "problems" in the Problems view?