
Subject: Re: Inconsistency displaying IDLgrROI
Posted by [Erik\[1\]](#) on Fri, 11 Apr 2008 08:36:56 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On 10 apr, 19:29, rtow...@gmail.com wrote:

> On Apr 10, 10:24 am, Bill Triplett wrote:

>

>> The sample of code below is supposed to convert some data to an IDLgrROI >> and then display it. The STYLE=0 keyword is supposed to cause the object >> to be rendered as a series of points.

>

>> This works well when I am connected to the workstation through a VNC >> session; however when working directly on the machine's console, it >> appears that the STYLE keyword is ignored, and the object is rendered as >> though it were a IDLgrPOLYLINE.

>

>> Does anyone what would cause this behavior? I am somewhat new to object >> graphics, but am learning quickly.

>

> Just a guess, but remove the ALPHA_CHANNEL keyword. Does that make a > difference?

>

> -Rick

Mind the difference between Style and LineStyle!

Use STYLE for point's, open- or closed- Roi's

Use LINESTYLE for a solid line or a dotted line etc.
