Weird. I've just noticed that while on my work computer (XP Pro / Firefox) the font I read google groups in can distinguish between 1(one) and l(L), at home, (XP Home/Firefox) they both look the same.

In the above code, all 'l' are the letter L except in this line:

```
newy = rebin(reform(newy,1,tempy),tempx,tempy)

where the 1 is a 'one'.

Must see if I can set up my default browser fonts better, or something.

Chris
