Hi Vino,

I've been following this thread trying to understand why you need to create a .dbd file and I'm just not seeing it. I think we need to take a step back.

What exactly do you want to do? You say you want to put your data into a database? What kind of database? What is a .dbd file? Is this .dbd file some format specific to stellar photometry? Or do you want to stick it in a generic relational database?

What references to "to different commands regarding database access and modification" are you referring to?
