
Subject: Re: interact with iimage from the command line?

Posted by David Fanning on Wed, 21 May 2008 17:54:38 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

pgrigis@gmail.com writes:

> Well, it is true that 8 bit color tables are the only ones > that are easily accessible from IDL, but there is nothing > to stop users to display false color images with color > tables with more than 256 elements, apart having to write > a few lines of code. As a matter of fact, sometimes I wonder > whether we should have some nice color table with, say, > 1024 elements...

Well, what few lines of code would you write? I'd like to see how something like this would work.

Cheers,

David

--

David Fanning, Ph.D.

Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.

Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: <http://www.dfanning.com/>

Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")
