Hello everybody. My question is simple, yet I haven't found a satisfying answer in the various guides.

I'm using spawn to call for an executable file under the Windows OS, it opens a command window and executes there. The problem is, very quickly I get an error and the entire command shell closes momentarily. I'd want to be able to see the error it presents before closing the shell, or just leave it open.

Is this possible? Is there any other way around it?

Thanks a lot for any help, Alex
