
Subject: Re: eps output with xplot or fsc_surface
Posted by David Fanning on Mon, 28 Jul 2008 16:34:10 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

David Fanning writes:

> I've even fooled around this morning trying to write this > output directly to a PostScript file using the method outlined > in this article:
>
> http://www.dfanning.com/ographics_tips/object_eps.html
>
> This results in a PostScript file that cannot be opened with > either Photoshop or GhostView. (IDL 7.0.1 on Windows.)

Whoops! Pilot error. If I select a PostScript printer, it helps a lot.

I still can't control the aspect ratio of the output, etc.
But at least the output is starting to resemble what I see in IDL when I import it into ImageReady.

I'm waiting to see what Justin has come up with.

Cheers,

David

--

David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: <http://www.dfanning.com/>
Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")
