Subject: Re: Provinding files for VM-Application
Posted by Bob[3] on Fri, 08 Aug 2008 12:03:24 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Aug 8, 7:51 am, wengi <andreas.w...@gmail.com> wrote:
> Hi there,
>
> I'm currently coding a project for a colleague. Unfortunately I have > to build the application for the VM because the colleague does not > have an IDL-license.
> The project needs some kind of dummy-files to read some information > from. Using the idlde I have the opportunity to provide these files, I > think. I just put the file in the "data-folder" of the project. Later > on I want to open the file with openr.
> While testing the application on a VM I always run into a "file-not-> found" error. I have no idea in which way I have to specify the path > to the file in the source-code.
> I tried:
>
> hname = '\data\header.ima'
> hname = '\header.ima'
>
> and then
>
> openr,unit,hname,/get_lun
>
> Always running into the "file-not-found" error. So where can I find my > provided files after having built the project? Any idea would be > appreciated.
>
> Regards,
> Andreas

no experience (yet) with the VM, but have you tried
hname = 'data\header.ima'
or
hname = 'header.ima'
with the file in the same dir as the VM executable (or a data subdir)?