Subject: Re: animation_image_doc.pro
Posted by David Fanning on Tue, 26 Aug 2008 14:46:06 GMT

Mike Potter writes:

> had set backing store to IDL(2) because when > displaying a single image my system (WinXP Home) does not handle > backing-store as requested and so any time another window passes over > the image it is "erased" until re-drawn.

I find this incredibly hard to believe. Are you sure?

I've never used anything but the default (DEVICE, RETAIN=1) on any Windows computer I've ever owned (lots of them) and I've never had a window not do backing store correctly even once.

Cheers,

David

--
David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: http://www.dfanning.com/
Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")