
Subject: Re: calculate correlation coefficient considering the significant level
Posted by [Chris\[6\]](#) on Sun, 19 Oct 2008 00:23:12 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Oct 18, 2:40 am, Mok <jungbin...@hotmail.com> wrote:

> However, among whole data, I just want to use the data within the > significant level 0.05.

It's unclear to me what you mean by this (what significance level are you referring to?). If you are wanting to select a subset of the data, using WHERE in combination with an appropriate significance test to filter the data beforehand may work. Exactly which test to use depends on what kind of data you are trying to use to calculate the correlation coefficient.

chris
