Thx for your answer Chris. But this also leaves me with a bunch of new code which makes my program even more confusing. Switching between tabs is always not simple because I always have to adjust the values of some buttons, maintain the zoom history of the current tabs, And of course I do not want to do all this just to switch back because the switching should have been forbidden...but I guess there is no "nice" way...I should have expected this from IDL...the more time I spent with this s### the more I hate it...
