Thanks for the replay. We are developing a software tool for data preparation and we are facing that kind of discussions from time to time. I think is part of the team work :-) For me the existence of the buttons is confusing since when you change a parameter in the spinner control panel and hit Enter, the new value is taking into account by the spinner automatically. It is not that you have to press any button (Apply, Cancel or OK) to set the new parameter in the spinner object. For that reason, I will go for the No_... buttons keywords. In my preference

Best wishes,
