
Subject: Re: Hypothesis testing

Posted by Vince Hradil on Fri, 12 Dec 2008 16:54:17 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Dec 12, 9:04 am, Bernhard Reinhardt
<wirdseltengele...@freisingnet.de> wrote:

> Hi,

>

> I'm trying to make my self familiar with hypothesis testing.

>

> RS_TEST seems to be the Routine of choice for me. As far as I understand > the idl-help RS_TEST does a two-sided test. But I need a one-sided U-Test.

>

> Anyone got a tip for me?

>

> Regards

>

> Bernhard

According to the documentation:

The result is a two-element vector containing the nearly-normal test statistic Z and the one-tailed probability of obtaining a value of Z or greater.

So I think you're good to go.
