Subject: Re: What is the simplest way to communicate between IDL and MATLAB? Posted by ben.bighair on Sun, 28 Dec 2008 02:06:08 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Dec 27, 6:43 pm, Craig Markwardt <cbmarkwa...@gmail.com> wrote:

- > On Dec 27, 9:15 am, erano <eran.o...@gmail.com> wrote:
- >
- >> Hello,

>

- >> I need to send 2 arrays and few parameters from IDL to MATLAB, run a
- >> MATLAB function, and have back one array from MATLAB to IDL (as a
- >> result from the MATLAB function).
- >> Can anyone suggest a solution?
- >> The ideal solution will be fully automatic, but half automatic will be
- >> nice.

>

- > Maybe by pack mule?
- > If not that, then by data file would be the next easiest.

Hi,

Here's generic array transfer routines I have used in the past with some success. As Craig suggest, they use files to move the data - you don't need to worry too much about the details. I have not used them in a very long time, but with luck they will work for you, too.

http://www.tidewater.net/~pemaquid/gen.zip

Cheers, Ben