
Subject: Re: Compile/Restore on Startup
Posted by Brian on Fri, 09 Jan 2009 21:34:11 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Jan 9, 3:45 pm, David Fanning <n...@dfanning.com> wrote:

> Brian writes:
>> Perhaps my terminology is incorrect. Yes, I have a created an >> ENVI .sav file and added it to the save_add directory. This is a save >> of many routines that use both ENVI and IDL functions and procedures.
>> My issue is that it doesn't "RESTORE" the file everytime I open an >> instance of ENVI, sometimes it merely "COMPILES" the file. When it >> "RESTORES" the .sav, my toolbar exists and everything works great!
>> however, more often that not, it "COMPILES" the .sav and my toolbar is >> not there:(
>
>> When I refer to RESTORE and COMPILE above, I'm referring to the >> messages I get in the IDL console upon startup of ENVI, NOT the >> commands. Hope this helps to decypher my previous message.
>
> This is exceedingly strange. :-)
>
> The only way it could possibly be "compiling" the file > is if your IDL paths are all higgly-squiggly. Now, this could > certainly happen if you are allowing IDL to set up your > paths for you. But if you have been reading this newsgroup > for any length of time, I find it hard to believe that > this is so.
>
> In any case, since it is IDL 7 we are talking about here,
> I would just make ABSOLUTELY sure that your projects > are NOT mucking with your IDL paths and that all your > path directories are being set in the PATHS preferences.
>
> <http://www.dfanning.com/workbench/pathchange.html>
>
> Maybe that will straighten things out.
>
> You might find my PrintPath routine helpful in sorting all this > out. I know I certainly have. :-)
>
> <http://www.dfanning.com/programs/printpath.pro>
>
> Cheers,
>
> David
> --
> David Fanning, Ph.D.
> Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.

- > Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming:<http://www.dfanning.com/>
- > Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")

That seemed to do it! It was a path issue. Thank you soooo much for all of your help, you guys ROCK!
