
Subject: Re: Get time and date from a server using a socket
Posted by Rick Towler on Mon, 02 Mar 2009 18:22:25 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Allan Whiteford wrote:

> bernat wrote:

> NTP uses UDP rather than TCP for communication. Socket only does (as far > as I know) TCP communication. I don't think IDL can (easily) do UDP.

For the record, I've modified Randall Frank's socket DLM to offer both TCP and UDP sockets and a class that wraps it up making it a bit easier to use. The project has withered on the vine as I ended up doing it in python (a phrase I seem to be saying more and more these days) but the code is available upon request.

-Rick
