Subject: Re: programming with widgets
Posted by David Fanning on Wed, 13 May 2009 13:18:56 GMT

nata writes:

> I wanted to create a FUNCTION for display a list of options. The user > selects one option and the FUNCTION returns it.
> The best way I found to do that is using a COMMON statement. I store > in the COMMON the variable who I'll return and I share this COMMON on > the EventHandler method. When the widget is closed, the only think > I've to do is return the content of the COMMON block.

Well, that's one way. There are others. :-)

   http://www.dfanning.com/widget_tips/popup.html

Cheers,

David

--
David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: http://www.dfanning.com/
Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")