Actually no.
In fact I am working on multiple screens. So I have one window in one screen and the other on the other screen.
I need a method which would call a function as soon as I left click on one of these windows. Then I know how to get the number of the window.
I have found some things when creating the widget_base
There are the keyworks /tlb_move_events or /tlb_iconify_events, and with these keywords I manage to call a function when I move or iconify a window. But it seems that there is nothing when we left click on a window... Is it ?
