> Of course David is right, as long as all the variables are the same > size. The 'execute' trick comes in handy if you have variables which > are of different lengths and would not neatly fit into an array.
>
> Tony

hum, an array of pointers would be suitable in this case

Jean