
Subject: Re: idl -quiet command-line option doesn't work in cron

Posted by MarioIncandenza on Fri, 24 Jul 2009 16:46:33 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Jul 23, 11:34 am, Bringfried Stecklum <steck...@tls-tautenburg.de> wrote:

> You have to redirect the output in /etc/crontab, like

>

> # m h dom mon dow user command

> 25 6 * * * hyer idl -quiet -queue -rt=routine.sav &> /dev/null

>

Ah, but I want the output (to my logfile) and I want the errors (to my email). What I do not want is the IDL startup message. The command line option -quiet, exists for exactly this reason, and it works-- except, for some reason, it doesn't work in cron. Puzzling.
