
Subject: Re: progressbar update problem

Posted by lbuseett@yahoo.it on Thu, 29 Oct 2009 17:02:20 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi David,

thanks for your suggestion ! I took a look at the IDL_IDLBRIDGE, and it seemed promising.

However, while reading the documentation and some posts in the newsgroup I found out that the Bridge can not be used in the virtual machine, since the EXECUTE method doesn't work.

Since I plan to share the application with the VM, I then think that I can not use this solution.

Any other ideas ?

Lorenzo

>

> I wonder if the IDL Bridge would help in this situation?
> (IDL_IDLBridge object). The idea would be to run the progress > bar in a separate IDL process. I really have no idea if you > could communicate with the ProgressBar object over the bridge > in this way. But since it would be running in a separate IDL > process, it might solve the "update" problem. On the other > hand, it might also cause a world of problems on its own, so...

>

> Cheers,

>

> David

>

> --

> David Fanning, Ph.D.

> Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.

> Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming:<http://www.dfanning.com/>

> Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")