Subject: Re: Works on Linux, not on MacOS Posted by Gray on Fri, 05 Mar 2010 03:49:52 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Mar 4, 7:03 pm, pp <pp.pente...@gmail.com> wrote:

> On Mar 4, 8:02 pm, wallabadah <write.to.wpow...@gmail.com> wrote:

>

- >> If the Mac is a MacBook (not a PowerBook), then it has an intel
- >> processor, so byte ordering should not be an issue.

>

- > That does not mean he is not running the PPC IDL. The documentation is
- > not clear whether things like the swap_if_little_endian keywords cause
- > a decision based on the host platform, or the IDL binary in use.

How do I find out which build I'm running? I looked through the config details on the "About IDL Workbench" splash screen, but I didn't see anything that would indicate either way.