
Subject: Re: Works on Linux, not on MacOS
Posted by Gray on Fri, 05 Mar 2010 03:49:52 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Mar 4, 7:03 pm, pp <pp.pente...@gmail.com> wrote:
> On Mar 4, 8:02 pm, wallabadah <write.to.wpow...@gmail.com> wrote:
>
>> If the Mac is a MacBook (not a PowerBook), then it has an intel >> processor, so byte ordering should not be an issue.
>
> That does not mean he is not running the PPC IDL. The documentation is > not clear whether things like the `swap_if_little_endian` keywords cause > a decision based on the host platform, or the IDL binary in use.

How do I find out which build I'm running? I looked through the config details on the "About IDL Workbench" splash screen, but I didn't see anything that would indicate either way.
